ABOUT API CONNECT

India's journey toward pharmaceutical self-reliance isn't just a policy direction anymore—it's something the industry is actively working toward every day. The lessons from COVID-19 and recent supply chain disruptions are still fresh, reminding us how important it is to build stronger, more reliable domestic capabilities.

But moving forward isn't just about increasing production. It's about asking the right questions—how do we scale efficiently, stay globally competitive, meet sustainability expectations, and adopt the right technologies without losing speed?

This is where APIConnect becomes relevant.

It's not designed as just another conference, but as a space where the industry can come together and have honest, practical conversations. A place where API manufacturers, technology experts, policymakers, and global partners don't just share perspectives—but exchange real insights, experiences, and solutions.

Because what the industry needs today isn't more noise—it needs clarity, collaboration, and actionable takeaways.

APIConnect is built around that belief.

A platform focused on learning, dialogue, and outcomes that actually matter.

At a time when every decision shapes the future of India's API ecosystem, conversations like these can make the difference—helping the industry move forward with more confidence, capability, and collective direction.
